Truman And Stalin Confer In Potsdam

PRE CONFERENCE MEETING HELD IN U. S. VILLA

Russian Leader And Aides Are Luncheon Guests Of President

BIG 3 MEETING TODAY

World Shipping And Feeding Of Hungry Nations May Be Topics At Talks

POTSDAM, July 17—President Truman, Premier Stalin and their foreign ministers conferred for an hour today at the temporary white house preliminary to the formal opening of the big three conference immediately after lunch.

Generalissimo Stalin was Mr. Truman's luncheon guest after the introductory conference in the President's office on the second floor of his Potsdam villa.

An official announcement

Stalin, accompanied by his staff, arrived at Mr. Truman's villa at 11:50 a. m. The party was greeted on the steps of the villa by the President's military aide, Brig. Gen. Harry Vaughan, and naval aide, Capt. James K. Vardaman. Stalin and Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov accompanied the aides to the office where Mr. Truman and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes were waiting. The initial talk of the American and Russian leaders was conducted through official interpreters.

Ready For Business

The meeting of Mr. Truman and Stalin cleared the way for the big three to get down to business. Prime Minister Churchill had called on the President for an informal talk yesterday while they were awaiting the delayed arrival of Stalin.

Mr. Truman sat at the head of the luncheon table. Stalin, wearing a fawn colored uniform and single star, was on the President's right. Next were the Soviet interpreter, V. N. Pavlov, and Molotov.

Byrnes sat to Mr. Truman's left, and next to him were the American interpreter, Charles E. Bohlen, and Admiral William F. Leahy, the President's personal advisor.

Mr. Truman wore a brown business suit.

Menu Listed

On the luncheon menu were cream of spinach soup, fried liver and bacon smothered in onions, baked ham, potatoes, string beans, pumpernickel, jam, sliced fruit, cookies, mints, candy, and cigars.

Information made available by the American section of the conference made no mention of alcoholic drinks.

Navy Filipino personnel from the presidential yacht Potomac served the meal. After lunch the party went to the rear porch overlooking a lake and posed for pictures taken by three U. S. Army and three Russian official photographers. No

DOCTOR, SISTER INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY CAR

Dr. D. K. Goodman, Kingston and his sister, Miss Alice Goodman, suffered fractures and shock Monday about 2:30 p. m. when they were struck by the Buick automobile driven by Herman Turney, East Union street.

Turney was turning west on Main street off South Court street when Dr. Goodman and his sister stepped from behind another car that was waiting at the intersection for the change of traffic light.

Both were given emergency treatment in Berger hospital and an examination disclosed that Miss Goodman was suffering from a fracture of the left shoulder blade and severe shock. She was removed to Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus. Dr. Goodman who suffered fractures of the ribs and the left ankle was dismissed from Berger hospital but was admitted later. He is now a patient there.

Escapes Death

A DEATH sentence imposed by a courtmartial court on Pvt. James Cooper, Norwood, O., (above) has been commuted to life imprisonment following a war department investigation of charges that Cooper, with another GI, killed a 71-year-old Chinese woman during a dispute.

AUGUST 1 NEW CHARTER GOAL

Ratification Of Peace Plan May Come Next Week, Leader Believes

WASHINGTON, July 17—Administration leaders today set August 1—or earlier—as the definite goal for senate ratification of the United Nations charter.

Debate on the treaty to put the United States into the new world security organization is scheduled to start next Monday.

One high administration leader in the senate estimated today that the final vote might come by the end of next week. In any event, he doubted that debate would run longer than 10 days, ending August 1. Previous estimates of final action had ranged up to August 15.

The decision to step up the goal was seen as an attempt to complete ratification while President Truman's first big three meeting still is in progress. That conference may last as long as three weeks.

Changes of meeting the advanced deadline appeared excellent. There is no sign of organized opposition. There is no assurance that even a single reservation will be offered.

A leading Republican cast doubt on previous estimates that nearly every senator would make a speech on the subject before the vote comes.

Instead the debate may be devoted almost exclusively to trying to win over such holdouts as Sens. Henrik Shipstead, R., Minn., and Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont.

Shipstead is the only member of the foreign relations committee who did not participate in its 21 to 1 vote for approval of the treaty. He issued a statement on his position last night.

He challenged the philosophy of setting up an organization to keep peace "before we know what the provisions are in the peace treaty."

TRUMAN WOULD SCRAP SURPLUS PROPERTY BOARD

President Asks Congress To Authorize Naming Of Single Official

NEW CHAIRMAN IN CHARGE

Symington Took Over Job On Monday; May Became One-Man Board

WASHINGTON, July 17—President Truman today asked congress to scrap the three-man surplus property board and authorize appointment of a single official to direct the vast job of handling the government's surplus war property.

Experience has shown that the job should be centralized under a single head, Mr. Truman said in a special message to congress.

The program now is administered by a three-man board. Its new chairman, W. Stuart Symington of St. Louis, took his oath of office only yesterday. It was believed that if congress should set up a one-man administrator, Mr. Truman probably would pick Symington for the job.

Other members of the present board are Robert A. Hurley, former governor of Connecticut, and Lt. Col. Edward Heller, California businessman.

Mr. Truman said that administration of the surplus disposal job by a multi-member board "has complicated day-to-day operations" under the surplus property act. When Secretary of State James F. Byrnes was director of war mobilization and reconversion, the President said, he recommended appointment of a single administrator.

"I think," Mr. Truman added, "experience has proved him right."

He noted that Guy M. Gillette, Symington's predecessor as chairman of the three-man surplus property board, supports the belief that "the act can best be administered by a single administrator."

"I am convinced," the President said, "that the effective performance of the vast administrative task remaining for the disposal of surplus property imperatively requires that authority to make decisions and responsibility for those decisions should be centralized in a single official."

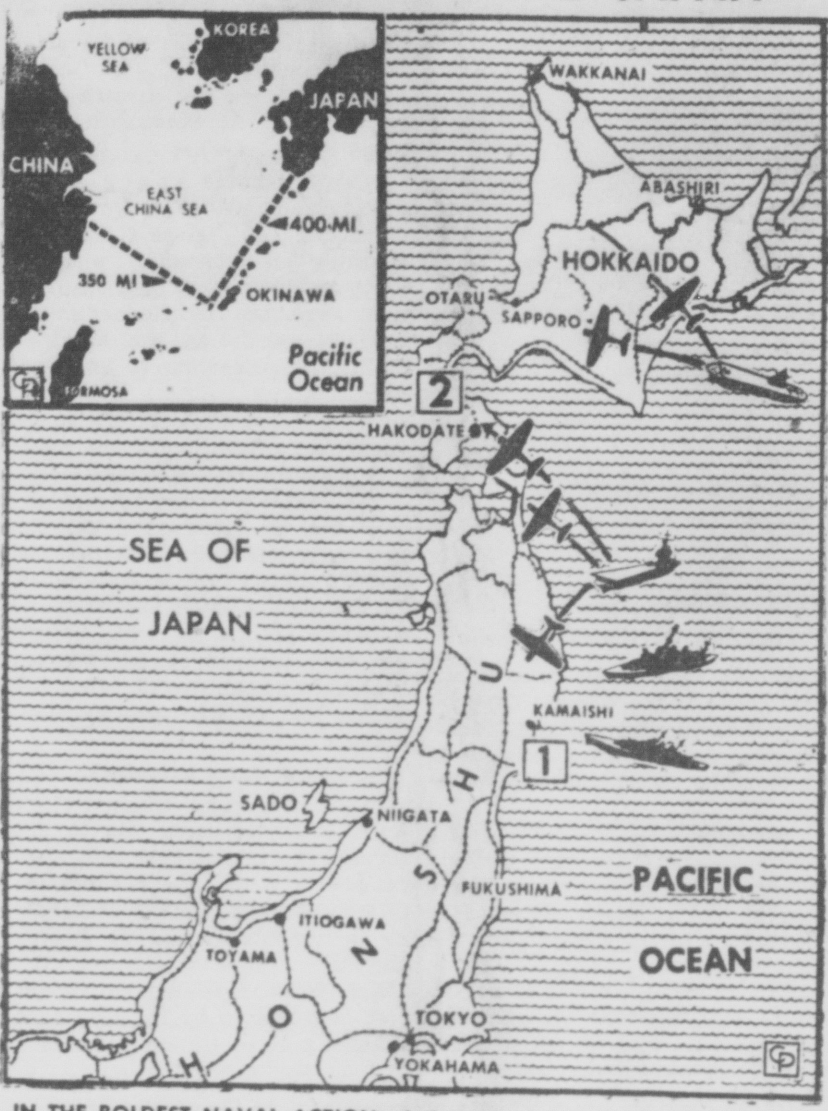

7,000 DOCTORS FACE DISCHARGE IN NEAR FUTURE

WASHINGTON, July 17—The Army has released 900 medical officers since Jan. 1 and plans to discharge 7,000 more in the next six months, the war department said today.

An announcement said these discharges were in line with the Army's policy of returning "as many doctors to civilian practice as can be spared by military needs."

The department said plans to discharge doctors will be based on "such factors as requirements of the service and of the civilian population, the service ratings of the individual officers, and their own desires for release or retention."

WHERE YANKS SHELLED JAPAN

IN THE BOLDEST NAVAL ACTION of the war, units of the U. S. Pacific fleet steamed into Japan's front yard and, for the first time, tossed tons of shells from heavy warships into a Jap city. The target was Kamaishi (1), strategic steel-producing center on Honshu. While the nine-vessel task force was bombarding the coastal city, more than 1,000 carrier planes swarmed over northern Honshu and Hokkaido and blasted enemy installations. The city of Hakodate (2) was left afire. In inset, the U. S. base at Okinawa is shown in relation to Japan.

New Food Boss Promises American Civilians Fair Share, Not Just Leftovers

WASHINGTON, July 17—American civilians are going to get a just share of the nation's food supply—and not simply what is left in the cupboard after other demands have been met.

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson made that clear today with his pledge that the needs of the American people must and will be given "due recognition" when food is being allocated for military and foreign use.

In his first public survey of food problems, the nation's new food boss said that the policy of "close and constant" scrutiny of food demands already has brought results favorable to civilians.

The Army recently cut back its requirements for sugar by 68,000 tons. This quantity is expected to go a long way toward meeting the canning sugar deficit. Reductions in military purchases of meat and butter will further aid the home economy, Anderson reported.

But he warned civilians not to expect miracles because shortages will continue to exist for many months to come.

"The now impoverished people of Europe who gave up their substance and lives to help defeat the Nazis must not be forgotten," Anderson asserted, and "we still have a big war to win."

The secretary reported that only wheat, potatoes and fresh vegetables will be adequate to meet demands in coming months. Meat, fats and oils, sugar, canned fruits and vegetables and evaporated milk will continue in short supply. And rice and dry bean supplies will get shorter.

Despite this gloomy outlook, the

CHINESE UNITS STORM KWEILIN, PUSH TO NORTH

Tinpan Retaken From Japs, Communique Says; Troops Go Into Indo-China

TUNGHING RECAPTURED

Nip Retreat Path Toward Hunan Province Cut Off By New Moves

CHUNGKING, July 17—A Chinese communique said today that China's troops stormed the suburbs of Kweilin, former site of the great American airbase lost to the Japanese last November, and advancing columns have pushed 20 miles to the north cutting off the enemy's retreat toward Hunan province.

The communique also announced that Tinpan, on the Kwangtung coast 150 miles west of Hongkong, had been retaken.

The Chinese forces have recaptured Tungching, in the southwestern most corner of Kwangtung province approximately 290 miles southwest of Kweilin, and crossed the border into French Indo-China to occupy Moncay.

On July 15 two enemy held points 20 miles north of Kweilin were recaptured. Chinese troops pushing up the Hunan-Kwaingsi railroad reached a point 10 miles southwest of Yungfu, which is 32 miles southwest Kweilin.

Other units infiltrated into the outskirts of Kweilin, itself, and were harassing the enemy there as the hard-pressed Japanese attempted to hold them back.

The recapture of Tinpan means that the enemy forces between Yungkung, which is 110 miles southwest of Canton, and the Liuchow peninsula are cut off. The enemy in Yungkung on July 12 drove northeast but were intercepted by the Chinese.

Tungching was recaptured on July 7, but before it fell Japanese puppet troops mutilated and surrendered their arms to Chinese units. The enemy garrison inside Tungching was forced to retreat toward Indo-China while the Chinese, in hot pursuit, crossed the Pellun river on the border and then occupied Moncay.

GOV. LAUSCHE TO HOLD BILL UNTIL DEADLINE

COLUMBUS, July 17—Gov. Frank J. Lausche was expected to act today on all but one of the last 19 bills passed by the 96th Ohio General Assembly still needing his signature.

Lausche indicated, however, that he would not act until tomorrow—the final deadline—on the capital improvements bill earmarking $79,834,948 for postwar additions and betterments.

The governor objected to a provision of the measure allocating an additional $1,560,000 to townships for any purposes they may desire.

He believed sufficient money already had been given the townships in the general appropriations bill which gave them $1,500,000 for road purposes, a $300,000 increase over the last biennium.

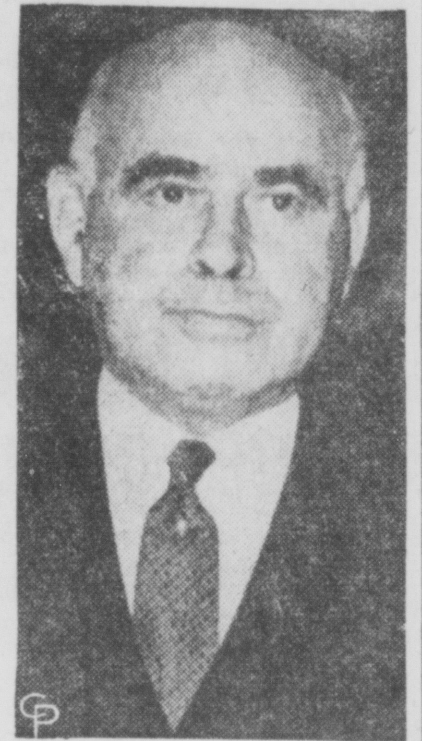

Under state law, the governor may eliminate specific items from appropriations bill without vetoing the entire measure.

Lausche also still must act on 18 other bills passed by the legislature before it recessed July 6 to return next Thursday to adjourn sine die and act on possible vetoes.

They include a highly controversial measure to relieve liquor permit holders of responsibility in cases of minors who present "written evidence" that they are of age.

Under the present law, the permit holders are responsible for the sale of liquor to minors regardless of whether written proof is presented. Former Gov. John W. Bricker vetoed a similar bill two years ago.

May Resign

HERBERT H. Lehman, above, may resign as director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation, according to his Washington associates. His reason for quitting, they say, is to attempt to bring to public attention the difficulties in getting food and supplies for Europe.

PEACE RUMORS ARE NUMEROUS

Wholly Unconfirmed Reports About War Developments Heard In Capital

WASHINGTON, July 17—The capital today heard wholly unconfirmed reports and rumors that important developments were imminent in the war with Japan.

One report said that Premier Josef Stalin may be carrying a Japanese surrender offer to the current big three conference. Still another had it that the state department was drafting a definition of unconditional surrender for Japan.

Neither the state department nor any other government agency offered comment.

Radio Commentator Wilfrid Fleisher (CBS) last night said that he had information that Russia might be acting as an intermediary between the United States and Japan. Stalin, he said, may present the Japanese the offer personally to Mr. Truman.

This, Fleisher said, may explain why President Truman plans to hurry back to Washington when the conference ends.

Mr. Truman had originally planned to tour western Europe after the big three meeting, but those plans are now off and he is expected to return immediately to Washington.

The President's change of plan spurred speculation that Japan may be nearer surrender than has been assumed.

In direct contrast, however, are recent statements by high Army and Navy officers that the Pacific war is far from over—that Japan is capable of fighting a long war despite heavy damage to her war industries.

SENATE QUICKLY APPROVES VINSON FOR NEW POST

WASHINGTON, July 17—The senate finance committee today approved the nomination of Fred M. Vinson to be secretary of treasury.

Vinson succeeds Henry Morgenthau, Jr., who had held the post for more than 11 years. As secretary of the treasury, Vinson will be next in line for the presidency after Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

The senate also was expected to vote to speedily confirmation of Federal Loan Administrator John W. Snyder to succeed Vinson as war mobilization director.

Emil Schram, president of the New York stock exchange and former chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was reported in line for Snyder's loan post.

Vinson's appointment was Mr. Truman's sixth cabinet switch. It left only four holdovers in the cabinet he inherited from the late Franklin Roosevelt.

1,500 Carriers Bomb Nip Bases; Nimitz Says War At Invasion Stage

BULLETIN

GUAM, Wednesday, July 18—United States Pacific fleet warships late last night opened a thunderous bombardment of the factory city of Hitachi and its industrial suburbs only 75 miles north of Tokyo on the eastern coast of Honshu island, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

By United Press

Japan rocked today under the impact of its first 2,000 plane bombardment of the war. It was hit by the combined might of the American and British fleets, which attacked the Tokyo area while B-29s bombed four smaller war centers to the south.

The great force of perhaps 150 warships moved in on the Japanese coast under cover of darkness, guided by the B-29s' fires still spotting the skies over Honshu, and loosed over 1,500 warplanes against the network of airfields surrounding Tokyo.

The attack, which was the fourth seaborne assault on the Japanese homeland in seven days, began at dawn and hours later the navy pilots were still at their work.

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz declared that this vast armada's presence unchallenged in the area brought the Pacific war to the "pre-invasion stage."

Nimitz said the attack was continuing in great strength.

Admiral William F. Halsey's Third fleet sailed south to meet the British Pacific fleet and brought it under Halsey's command for the joint strike on Tokyo.

The 35,000-ton King George V and the 23,000-ton carrier Formidable were among the large British war vessels participating in the action.

The strike came a few hours after 500 super-forts, based on the Marianas, splattered over 2,500 tons of fire bombs across Namatsu, Hiratsuka, and Kuwana on Honshu, and Oita on the northeast tip of Kyushu.

LAKE STEAMER CATCHES FIRE; 200 ON BOARD

PORT HURON, Mich., July 17—The Great Lakes liner S. S. Hamonic, with passengers and crew aboard, caught fire at her pier in Port Edward, Ont., today and was cut adrift in the St. Clair river with her whistles screaming for help. Other boats went to the rescue and first reports indicated all aboard were saved.

The fire broke out in the Canadian National railroad freight sheds ashore and swept along the waterfront to the ship, owned by the northern navigation company. The liner was cut adrift to escape the flames, but too late.

Passengers scattered in panic, some jumping overboard, others diving from the gangplank or sliding down ropes.

Steamship line officials said 200 passengers were aboard when the ship left Detroit last night. It was not known how many had disembarked before the fire.

Spectators lined the banks on the American side of the river to watch the rescue.

When the ship was cut adrift the whole area was obscured by smoke and not until the liner edged into midstream could flames be seen leaping from the decks. Coast guard cutters and all privately owned boats in the vicinity raced to the rescue.

The ship's superstructure continued to burn fiercely after all aboard were believed to have been removed.

CHUNGKING, July 17—A Chinese communique said today that China's troops stormed the suburbs of Kweilin, former site of the great American airbase lost to the Japanese last November, and advancing columns have pushed 20 miles to the north cutting off the enemy's retreat toward Hunan province.

The communique also announced that Tinpan, on the Kwangtung coast 150 miles west of Hongkong, had been retaken.

The Chinese forces have recaptured Tungching, in the southwestern most corner of Kwangtung province approximately 290 miles southwest of Kweilin, and crossed the border into French Indo-China to occupy Moncay.

On July 15 two enemy held points 20 miles north of Kweilin were recaptured, Chinese troops pushing up the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad reached a point 10 miles southwest of Yungfu, which is 32 miles southwest of Kweilin.

Other units infiltrated into the outskirts of Kweilin, itself, and were harassing the enemy there as the hard-pressed Japanese attempted to hold them back.

The recapture of Tinpan means that the enemy forces between Yungkung, which is 110 miles southwest of Canton, and the Liuchow peninsula are cut off. The enemy in Yungkung on July 12 drove northeast but were intercepted by the Chinese.

Tungching was recaptured on July 7, but before it fell Japanese puppet troops mutinied and surrendered their arms to Chinese units. GOV. LAUSCHE TO HOLD BILL UNTIL DEADLINE

COLUMBUS, July 17—Gov. Frank J. Lausche was expected to act today on all but one of the last 19 bills passed by the 96th Ohio General Assembly still needing his signature.

Lausche indicated, however, that he would not act until tomorrow—the final deadline—on the capital improvements bill earmarking $79,834,948 for postwar additions and betterments.

The governor objected to a provision of the measure allocating an additional $1,560,000 to townships for any purposes they may desire.

He believed sufficient money already had been given the townships in the general appropriations bill which gave them $1,500,000 for road purposes, a $300,000 increase over the last biennium.

Under state law, the governor may eliminate specific items from appropriations bill without vetoing the entire measure.

Lausche also still must act on 18 other bills passed by the legislature before it recessed July 6 to return next Thursday to adjourn sine die and act on possible vetoes.

They include a highly controversial measure to relieve liquor permit holders of responsibility in cases of minors who present "written evidence" that they are of age.

Under the present law, the permit holders are responsible for the sale of liquor to minors regardless of whether written proof is presented. Former Gov. John W. Bricker vetoed a similar bill two years ago.

PEACE RUMORS ARE NUMEROUS

Wholly Unconfirmed Reports About War Developments Heard In Capital

WASHINGTON, July 17—The capital today heard wholly unconfirmed reports and rumors that important developments were imminent in the war with Japan.

One report said that Premier Josef Stalin may be carrying a Japanese surrender offer to the current big three conference. Still another had it that the state department was drafting a definition of unconditional surrender for Japan.

Neither the state department nor any other government agency offered comment.

Radio Commentator Wilfrid Fleisher (CBS) last night said that he had information that Russia might be acting as an intermediary between the United States and Japan. Stalin, he said, may present the Japanese the offer personally to Mr. Truman.

This, Fleisher said, may explain why President Truman plans to hurry back to Washington when the conference ends.

Mr. Truman had originally planned to tour western Europe after the big three meeting, but those plans are now off and he is expected to return immediately to Washington.

The President's change of plan spurred speculation that Japan may be nearer surrender than has been assumed.

In direct contrast, however, are recent statements by high Army and Navy officers that the Pacific war is far from over—that Japan is capable of fighting a long war despite heavy damage to her war industries.

WASHINGTON, July 17—The senate finance committee today approved the nomination of Fred M. Vinson to be secretary of treasury.

Vinson succeeds Henry Morgenthau, Jr., who had held the post for more than 11 years. As secretary of the treasury, Vinson will be next in line for the presidency after Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The senate also was expected to vote to speedy confirmation of Federal Loan Administrator John W. Snyder to succeed Vinson as war mobilization president.

Emil Schram, president of the New York stock exchange and former chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was reported in line for Snyder's loan post.

Vinson's appointment was Mr. Truman's sixth cabinet switch. It left only four holdovers in the cabinet he inherited from the late Franklin Roosevelt.

2,000 PLANES IN ATTACK

1,500 Carriers Bomb Nip Bases; Nimitz Says War At Invasion Stage

BULLETIN GUAM, Wednesday, July 18—United States Pacific fleet warships late last night opened a thunderous bombardment of the factory city of Hitachi and its industrial suburbs only 75 miles north of Tokyo on the eastern coast of Honshu island, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

By United Press Japan rocked today under the impact of its first 2,000 plane bombardment of the war. It was hit by the combined might of the American and British fleets, which attacked the Tokyo area while B-29s bombed four smaller war centers to the south.

The great force of perhaps 150 warships moved in on the Japanese coast under cover of darkness, guided by the B-29's fires still spotting the skies over Honshu, and loosed over 1,500 warplanes against the network of airfields surrounding Tokyo.

The attack, which was the fourth seaborne assault on the Japanese homeland in seven days, began at dawn and hours later the navy pilots were still at their work.

Fleet Unchallenged Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz declared that this vast armada's presence unchallenged in the area brought the Pacific war to the "pre-invasion stage."

Nimitz said the attack was continuing in great strength.

Admiral William F. Halsey's Third fleet sailed south to meet the British Pacific fleet and brought it under Halsey's command for the joint strike on Tokyo.

The 35,000-ton King George V and the 23,000-ton carrier Formidable were among the large British war vessels participating in the action.

The strike came a few hours after 500 super-forts, based on the Marianas, splattered over 2,500 tons of fire bombs across Namazu, Hiratsuka, and Kuwana on Honshu, and Oita on the northeast tip of Kyushu.

LAKE STEAMER CATCHES FIRE; 200 ON BOARD

PORT HURON, Mich., July 17—The Great Lakes liner S. S. Hamonic, with passengers and crew aboard, caught fire at her pier in Port Huron, Ont., today and was cut adrift in the St. Clair river with her whistles screaming for help. Other boats went to the rescue and first reports indicated all aboard were saved.

The fire broke out in the Canadian National railroad freight sheds ashore and swept along the waterfront to the ship, owned by the northern navigation company. The liner was cut adrift to escape the flames, but too late.

Passengers scattered in panic, some jumping overboard, others diving from the gangplank or sliding down ropes.

Steamship line officials said 200 passengers were aboard when the ship left Detroit last night. It was not known how many had disembarked before the fire.

Spectators lined the banks on the American side of the river to watch the rescues.

When the ship was cut adrift the whole area was obscured by smoke and not until the liner edged into midstream could flames be seen leaping from the decks. Coast guard cutters and all privately owned boats in the vicinity raced to the rescue.

The ship's superstructure continued to burn fiercely after all aboard were believed to have been removed.

were secondary aircraft or arms centers that have become prime targets following the destruction of Japan's major war production centers.

The super-forts carried the obliteration offensive into its 42nd straight day and this marked the first B-29 raid under the newly-organized U. S. Army strategic air forces of the Pacific headed by Gen. Carl Spaatz, who directed the aerial destruction of Germany.

In a radio address, Nimitz declared that American and British forces are out for the complete destruction "by shelling and bombing of every industry and resource which contributes to Japan's ability to make war."

It was revealed that in two strikes on Saturday and Sunday against the northern Japanese islands at least 374 Japanese ships or small craft were sunk or damaged for a total of 159,000 tons.

U. S. Army fighters from Iwo Jima, 150 strong, strafed six airfields in eastern Honshu yesterday afternoon, according to Tokyo. Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced that other warplanes under his command had sunk or damaged 42 Japanese ships and small craft in a series of sweeps along the Asiatic coast.

From Chungking, a Chinese communique announced that Chinese troops have stormed the suburbs of Kweilin, former site of the great American airbase, and that advancing columns have pushed 20 miles to the north cutting off the enemy's retreat toward Hunan province.

In Borneo, Japanese troops were fighting stubbornly attempting to hold the road to Samarinda as the Aussie seventh division advanced slowly east of captured Mount Batochamper.

LEOPOLD ASKS ELECTIONS TO LEARN STATUS

LONDON, July 17—Premier Achille van Acker read to the Belgian chamber of deputies today a letter in which King Leopold asked that parliamentary elections be held to test whether he should retain his throne.

Leopold, in the letter broadcast by the Brussels radio, said sentiment at present could not be determined, and that the "will of the people alone" would cause him to abdicate.

The Belgian parliament met in extraordinary session to consider the political crisis. Leopold said he considered that a majority of the Belgians wanted him to return, but he would not "until national consultation of the country takes place."

JAPS 'NOT QUITE' SATISFIED' WITH AWA MARU NOTE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17—A Tokyo spokesman said today that Japan is "not quite satisfied" with the United States' recent note acknowledging American responsibility for the sinking of the Japanese relief ship Awa Maru in the east China sea last April 1.

The spokesman said Japan did not want to await the end of hostilities to settle the indemnity question, and that his government wanted to know exactly what disciplinary action was taken against the American submarine commander responsible for the sinking.

Navy Secretary James Forrestal already had announced that the officer had been relieved of his command and court-martialed, but that the Navy did not intend to make public the result of the trial.

WILL THE EX-QUEEN OF THE SKIES, THE DIRIGIBLE, RETURN TO STARRY THRONE AGAIN, AFTER WAR'S END?

BIG BALLOONS' HOME—This huge dirigible hangar in Akron, O., can house several giants of the air.

By BERT H. DAVIS

Central Press Correspondent

AKRON, O.—The gas bag never quit. It only waited for the world to get air-minded enough to give it a real break.

And now the large, rigid airship, raised and held aloft by helium and powered by modern motors, is being groomed for important jobs in post-war trans-oceanic commerce.

Goodyear Aircraft people here continue to do a big job on airplane production — the heavier-than-air craft. They like to talk plane stresses and speeds and durability. They will pass the time of day with talk about missing steaks and cigars. But their real babe is the rigid airship — the dirigible or modernized Zeppelin. They call her seriously and even with reverence, "Queen of the Skies."

Air Travel Is Old

Men traveled briefly by air—and wherever the wind took their globe-like balloons — before the United States got a Constitution. It has taken a long time to come through to the whale-shaped aerial freighter or passenger ship, nearly 1,000 feet long and with top speed of 90 miles an hour.

That is the post-war job which is long past design and engineering details. Today's hobby for Goodyearites is to figure sales angles on the big and expensive ship—show steamship people and flying-boat operators and others that they need the gas bag, too.

In speed the airship places about midway between surface shipping and the winged, heavier-than-air transports. Ditto, for operating cost.

Styles have been changing for the better, and in materials and motors more than overall appearance. Chief engineer for bettered airships is Dr. Karl Arnstein, vice president of Goodyear Aircraft.

Originally With Zeppelin

He came to the local organization 21 years ago from 10 years as chief engineer of the German Zeppelin organization. Down through the years he has been principal designer of around 60 military and commercial airships.

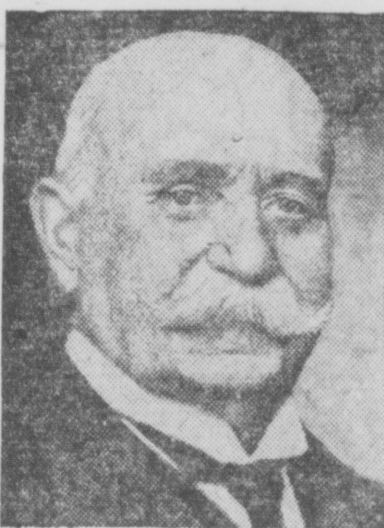

The two fields, heavier-than-air planes and lighter-than-air "bags," trade ideas back and forth. There is not the feeling about the two types of flight that existed between the steam men and the sailing men, when sea travel was being revamped.

Jet propulsion, for instance, is carefully checked as a possibility for powering airships. Diesel engines and gas turbines are among the possibilities, too.

"But in charting what the future airship can offer in safety, speed, and economy of operation," says Harold A. Polonus, "we base the figures on a ship powered by six conventional air-cooled radial type airplane engines of 1,050 h. p. each. "Cruising speed for the ship we've planned would be 75 miles an hour. Pay load would be immense and profitable for, remember, the gas gets the ship into the air and the motive power only moves it through an element where it belongs."

The safety story is good, right from starting line. Goodyear-built non-rigid airships, inflated with helium, carried 400,000 passengers and flew nearly five million miles without injuring a single one.

"In the whole history of commercial airship operations," Goodyear men reminded aviation writers at a Chicago meeting the other day, "only 13 passengers have lost their lives. Those fatalities were on the German Zeppelin Hindenburg, using inflammable hydrogen. America's helium puts us in a special class for airship operation."

The gas is found in practically unlimited quantities in Texas and elsewhere in the southwest. There are no other known deposits of anything like the size and accessibility of ours.

Ten million cubic feet of helium in 17 separate cells with lift and hold aloft the type of carrier Goodyear plans for post-war sales.

In the previous use of helium in large quantities, a special type railroad car has been used to bring the gas to mooring points. Eleven United States bases are now equipped to handle and service rigid airships. Of pilots, navigators, meteorologists and mechanics for an airship fleet there will be, after the war, a vast, well-trained number.

"Such crews will take over an airship 850 feet long and 142 feet in diameter," says Arnstein.

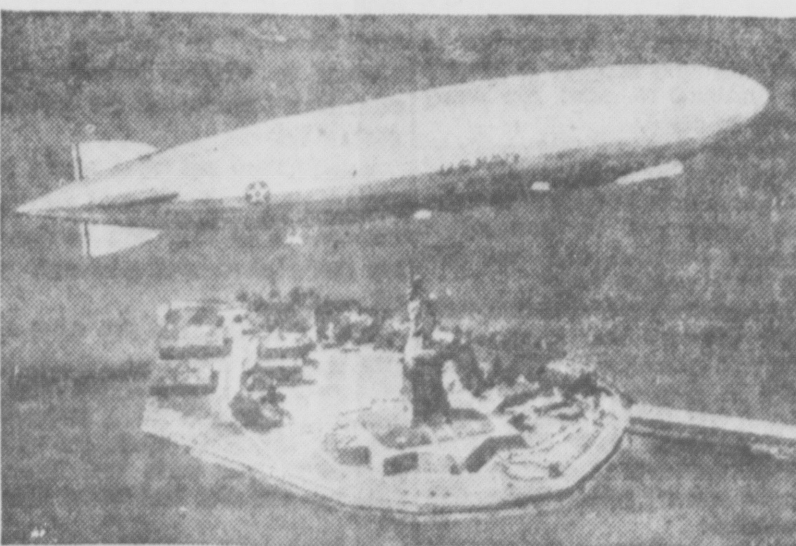

"Normal operating personnel for a ship of that size handling freight would be 40 persons. On passenger craft of that size the airship line would probably add 20 to 25 of service personnel."

"The structure of the ship will be made of riveted aluminum alloy girders. A doped fabric outside cover is stretched over this frame."

Fifteen years of experience with aluminum girders and struts and sheaths have been all to the good. There's now half again as much strength in an "open work" aluminum alloy girder as in the members that were formerly developed for airship structures.

The big ship can carry a "payload" of 85,000 pounds at low rates and fair profit for a 6,000-mile flight, the newest cost figures show. For a 3,000-mile trip a 165,000-pound cargo "pays off" commercially.

"Airships hold the aces in that kind of game," they say in Akron.

DIRIGIBLE—The Navy's great dirigible, Los Angeles, over New York.

Flight costs are tied in with exact specifications for craft soon ready to go on the market.

"Cargo storage space in the aerial freighter," Goodyear Aircraft folk say, "gives the airship operator an economical way to carry 180,000 pounds of goods from San Francisco to Honolulu. Or 110,000 pounds on the longer flights, like Honolulu to Shanghai non-stop."

"There is approximately 20,000 cubic feet of storage space ready for 'pay-load' on the shorter trips."

"The same size and type of airship can be fitted as a de luxe passenger craft for 100 persons. There'd be private staterooms, lounge, dining salon and bar, and a roomy promenade deck. Here's the only airliner so far planned that gives an average of 100 square feet of floor area per passenger."

Low Rates Promised

"Split the same space other ways and you carry 250 to 300 tourists in Pullman type accommodations or perhaps a combination of freight and passenger content—as in the steamships of many classes."

San Francisco-Honolulu freight cost is set down by the men with sharply pointed pencils between 9 and 10 cents per ton mile.

Investment of the same amount in heavier-than-air carriers and to handle equal tonnage would have weekly operating costs twice as high. As the figures stand today, airships can halve cargo-plane charges for transportation.

A passenger rate of five cents a mile is considered possible in the first operations of airship fleets. "Once there is an established flow of traffic and good-size fleets," adds Polonus, "this rate of fare might be cut considerably."

A Big Operation

In any form of transoceanic travel big operators are called for. A schedule using four airships in regular 2,500-mile flights would tie up a $30,000,000 investment and there would be bills of $246,400 to be met each week. Where Vice President Arnstein, Polonus and others believe airships ring the bell in long-distance trips is in that weekly-cost item.

Airplanes of flying boat type would carry less tonnage per unit, calling for a fleet of 20 to do the work of four airships. With an equal capital investment, there'd be an estimated cost for airplane service of $480,000 in handling equal tonnage.

And calculators of "ton miles" and "payload lifts" don't cancel out any of the thrill given both passengers and spectators as the "queen of the skies" heads out to sea. In the American trade, that thrill also has sales value!

pictures were made of Stalin arriving and leaving.

Stalin's Arrival Disclosed
The announcement of Stalin's visit with Mr. Truman was the first official disclosure that the generalissimo had arrived in Potsdam. Unofficial sources had reported his arrival yesterday afternoon.

Information from the tightly sequestered conference area still was skimpy. It was impossible to say at once whether the Truman-Stalin meeting was a get-acquainted chat or dealt in business. Some quarters regarded it as highly probable that Mr. Truman sought to get down to business without delay.

At any rate, the conference was due to get under way this afternoon, either with a personal meeting of the three allied chiefs or a plenary session without the leaders themselves.

Adm. Land Called
Indications increased that world shipping and the problem of feeding the hungry millions of war nations would get top priority in the discussions as President Truman sent a hurry-up call for Admiral Emory S. Land, head of the United States war shipping administration.

Mr. Truman had planned to see neither principal until at the conference table but Churchill came to call yesterday and the President held what was described informally as a pleasant sociable chat. However, it probably amounted to a quick rundown of conference matters. This discussion was at Churchill's initiative.

Admiral Land came into the conference picture as a result of pre-conference discussion in Washington. Before embarking on the Augusta, the President had directed Land to stand by for a quick trip to Potsdam.

Late yesterday, Mr. Truman ordered Land to proceed to Potsdam as soon as possible, accompanied by an appropriate staff.

Stimson, Arnold There
Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Gen. Henry H. (Hap) Arnold, chief of the Army's air forces, were also on hand in the American compound and have already participated in the daily combined chief of staff discussions.

Last night President Truman had as his dinner guests Edward F. Pauley, American chairman of the Moscow reparations commission, Joseph C. Davies, special presidential envoy, W. Averell Harriman, ambassador to Russia, James F. Byrnes, American secretary of state, and other top members of the American party including several aides.

The discussion over the dinner table almost certainly was preparatory to the conference. Davies had been in London shortly before coming to Potsdam.

After dinner the President and his guests walked to a concert by the combined army band.

The President retired early after another brief session with Byrnes.

JACK RANDALL
KILLED IN FALL
FROM HIS HORSE

HOLLYWOOD, July 17—Funeral services were being arranged today for Addison Randall, 38, cowboy actor husband of actress Barbara Bennett. He was killed in falling from a horse while making a motion picture.

Randall, an expert rider who acted in a series of western pictures in the late 1930's under the name of Jack Randall, was killed yesterday, his first day before the cameras in more than two years. He was in the role of a Canadian Northwest mounted trooper for his part in a universal serial.

Director Louis D. Collins said Randall was riding at top speed alone past the cameras when his hat blew off.

"He dived to grab the hat before it fell to the ground in order not to ruin the take," Collins said. "He lost sight of a tree right in his path. His horse went out of control and plunged into the tree. A big branch snapped and fell across his chest."

Cary C. Hettinger has filed suit in common pleas court against Thomas Hockman claiming $865 damages in an automobile accident.

The petition claims that on September 25, 1944, Hettinger was injured in an accident in which the truck, belonging to Hockman and driven by John Swatman, an employee, collided with the Plymouth sedan driven by Hettinger at the corner of East Mound street and Mingo street.

Hettinger claims that it was through the carelessness of the driver of the truck that he suffered injury to his knee which caused him to lose three days work. He also claims that he lost the use of his car for 30 days. He asks $200 for the damage to his automobile, $500 for his personal injuries, $150 for the loss of the use of his automobile in his business and $15 for the time that he was unable to work.

WILL THE EX-QUEEN OF THE SKIES, THE DIRIGIBLE, RETURN TO STARRY THRONE AGAIN, AFTER WAR'S END?

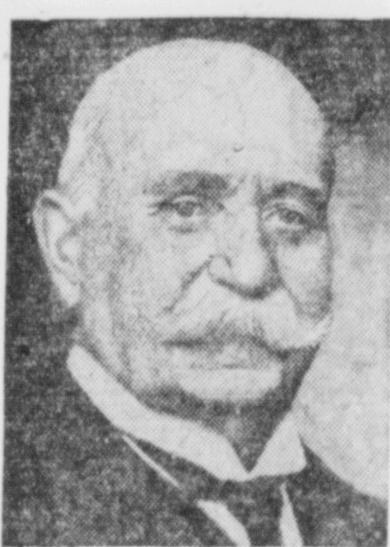

BIG BALLOONS' HOME—This huge dirigible hangar in Akron, O., can house several giants of the air.

By BERT H. DAVIS
Central Press Correspondent

AKRON, O.—The gas bag never quit. It only waited for the world to get air-minded enough to give it a real break.

And now the large, rigid airship, raised and held aloft by helium and powered by modern motors, is being groomed for important jobs in post-war trans-oceanic commerce.

INVENTOR—Count F. Zeppelin

Goodyear Aircraft people here continue to do a big job on air-plane production — the heavier-than-air craft. They like to talk plane stresses and speeds and durability. They will pass the time of day with talk about missing steaks and cigars. But their real babe is the rigid airship — the dirigible or modernized Zeppelin. They call her seriously and even with reverence, "Queen of the Skies."

Air Travel Is Old

Men traveled briefly by air—and wherever the wind took their globe-like balloons — before the United States got a Constitution. It has taken a long time to come through to the whale-shaped aerial freighter or passenger ship, nearly 1,000 feet long and with top speed of 90 miles an hour.

That is the post-war job which is — long past design and engineering details. Today's hobby for Goodyearites is to figure sales angles on the big and expensive ship — show steamship people and flying-boat operators and others that they need the gas bag, too.

In speed the airship places about midway between surface shipping and the winged, heavier-than-air transports. Ditto, for operating cost.

Styles have been changing for the better, and in materials and motors more than overall appearance. Chief engineer for bettered airships is Dr. Karl Arnstein, vice president of Goodyear Aircraft.

Originally With Zeppelin

He came to the local organization 21 years ago from 10 years as chief engineer of the German Zeppelin organization. Down through the years he has been principal designer of around 90 military and commercial airships.

The two fields, heavier-than-air planes and lighter-than-air "bags," trade ideas back and forth. There is not the feeling about the two types of flight that existed between the steam men and the sailing men, when sea travel was being revamped.

Jet propulsion, for instance, is carefully checked as a possibility for powering airships. Diesel engines and gas turbines are among the possibilities, too.

"But in charting what the future airship can offer in safety, speed, and economy of operation," says Harold A. Polonus, "we base the figures on a ship powered by six conventional air-cooled radial type airplane engines of 1,050 h. p. each."

"Cruising speed for the ship we've planned would be 75 miles an hour. Pay load would be immense and profitable for, remember, the gas gets the ship into the air and the motive power only moves it through an element where it belongs."

The safety story is good, right from starting line. Goodyear-built non-rigid airships, inflated with helium, carried 400,000 passengers and flew nearly five million miles without injuring a single one.

"In the whole history of commercial airship operations," Goodyear men reminded aviation writers at a Chicago meeting the other day, "only 13 passengers

Flight costs are tied in with exact specifications for craft soon ready to go on the market.

"Cargo storage space in the aerial freighter," Goodyear Aircraft folk say, "gives the airship operator an economical way to carry 180,000 pounds of goods from San Francisco to Honolulu. Or 110,000 pounds on the longer flights, like Honolulu to Shanghai non-stop."

"There is approximately 20,000 cubic feet of storage space ready for 'pay-load' on the shorter trips. The same size and type of airship can be fitted as a de luxe passenger craft for 100 persons. There'd be private staterooms, lounge, dining salon and bar, and a roomy promenade deck. Here's the only airliner so far planned that gives an average of 100 square feet of floor area per passenger!"

Low Rates Promised

"Split the same space other ways and you carry 250 to 300 tourists in Pullman type accommodations or perhaps a combination of freight and passenger content—as in the steamships of many classes."

San Francisco-Honolulu freight cost is set down by the men with sharply pointed pencils between 9 and 10 cents per ton mile.

Investment of the same amount in heavier-than-air carriers and to handle equal tonnage would have weekly operating costs twice as high. As the figures stand today, airships can halve cargo-plane charges for transportation.

A passenger rate of five cents a mile is considered possible in the first operations of airship fleets. "Once there is an established flow of traffic and good-size fleets," adds Polonus, "this rate of fare might be cut considerably."

A Big Operation

In any form of transoceanic travel big operators are called for. A schedule using four airships in regular 2,500-mile flights would tie up a $30,000,000 investment and there would be bills of $246,400 to be met each week. Where Vice President Arnstein, Polonus and others believe airships ring the bell in long-distance trips is in that weekly-cost item.

Airplanes of flying boat type would carry less tonnage per unit, calling for a fleet of 20 to do the work of four airships. With an equal capital investment, there'd be an estimated cost for airplane service of $480,000 in handling equal tonnage.

And calculators of "ton miles" and "payload lifts" don't cancel out any of the thrill given both passengers and spectators as the "queen of the skies" heads out to sea. In the American trade, that thrill also has sales value!

DIRIGIBLE—The Navy's great dirigible, Los Angeles, over New York.

DRIVER WHO PARKED CAR ON ROAD HELD IN JAIL

Held in Pickaway county jail Tuesday on charges of being in actual physical control of a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol was William Ross Anderson, Route 1, Kingston.

He was arrested by the sheriff's department early Tuesday after his car was struck by a William Fean and company truck, operated by Forest Dale Darnell, Columbus, on Route 23, one-half mile north of Circleville.

Deputy Sheriff Vern Pontious said Anderson parked his car in the middle of the road and went to sleep. The truck driver failed to see the car until too late to avoid hitting it. The impact knocked the car over a small hill, the officer said.

PRE CONFERENCE MEETING HELD IN U. S. VILLA

pictures were made of Stalin arriving and leaving.

Stalin's Arrival Disclosed

The announcement of Stalin's visit with Mr. Truman was the first official disclosure that the generalissimo had arrived in Potsdam. Unofficial sources had reported his arrival yesterday afternoon.

Information from the tightly sequestered conference area still was skimpy. It was impossible to say at once whether the Truman-Stalin meeting was a get-acquainted chat or dealt in business. Some quarters regarded it as highly probable that Mr. Truman sought to get down to business without delay.

At any rate, the conference was due to get under way this afternoon, either with a personal meeting of the three allied chieftains or a plenary session without the leaders themselves.

Adm. Land Called

Indications increased that world shipping and the problem of feeding the hungry millions of many nations would get top priority in the discussions as President Truman sent a hurry-up call for Admiral Emory S. Land, head of the United States war shipping administration.

Mr. Truman had planned to see neither principal until after the conference table but Churchill came to call yesterday and the President held what was described informally as a pleasant sociable chat. However, it probably amounted to a quick rundown of conference matters. This discussion was at Churchill's initiative.

Admiral Land came into the conference picture as a result of pre-conference discussion in Washington. Before embarking on the Augusta, the President had directed Land to stand by for a quick trip to Potsdam.

Late yesterday, Mr. Truman ordered Land to proceed to Potsdam as soon as possible, accompanied by an appropriate staff.

Stimson, Arnold There

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Gen. Henry H. (Hap) Arnold, chief of the Army's air forces, were also on hand in the American compound and have already participated in the daily combined chief of staff discussions.

Last night President Truman had as his dinner guests Edward F. Pauley, American chairman of the Moscow reparations commission, Joseph C. Davies, special presidential envoy, W. Averell Harriman, ambassador to Russia, James F. Byrnes, American secretary of state, and other top members of the American party including several aides.

The discussion over the dinner table almost certainly was preparatory to the conference. Davies had been in London shortly before coming to Potsdam.

After dinner the President and his guests walked to a concert by the combined army band.

The President retired early after another brief session with Byrnes.

JACK RANDALL KILLED IN FALL FROM HIS HORSE

HOLLYWOOD, July 17—Funeral services were being arranged today for Addison Randall, 38, cowboy actor husband of actress Barbara Bennett. He was killed in falling from a horse while making a motion picture.

Randall, an expert rider who acted in a series of western pictures in the late 1930's under the name of Jack Randall, was killed yesterday, his first day before the cameras in more than two years. He was in the role of a Canadian Northwest mounted trooper for his part in a universal serial.

Director Louis D. Collins said Randall was riding at top speed alone past the cameras when his hat blew off.

"He dived to grab the hat before it fell to the ground in order not to ruin the take," Collins said. "He lost sight of a tree right in his path. His horse went out of control and plunged into the tree. A big branch snapped and fell across his chest."

nation will be eating "at least as well" as it has in recent months, he said.

He promised continued battles against the black market—"our biggest enemy" on the home front. This fight plus measures to improve distribution should bring considerable relief, he declared.

In addition, Anderson disclosed that "aggressive" action was being taken to obtain greater supplies from South America and other foreign surplus areas.

As far as U. S. production is concerned, Anderson said, a backward crop season has materially dampened food prospects for this year, but plans now are being laid for "more adequate production" next year.

FOUR BOYS LECTURED FOR ROBBERY STAND, OFFICE

Four youths, all except one under 10 years of age, were given a lecture by Probate Judge Sterling M. Lamb Tuesday after they admitted entering the office of the Pickaway Grain company, Canal street and the stand at the Ted Lewis ball park.

Office workers at the grain company reported nothing missing there but the youths had a box of advertising matches from there. The ball stand was looted of 6 dozen 5-cent packages of potato chips, 10 bottles of pop and 18 cigars.

$865 DAMAGE SUIT FILED BY CARY C. HETTINGER

Cary C. Hettinger has filed suit in common pleas court against Thomas Hockman claiming $865 damages in an automobile accident.

The petition claims that on September 25, 1944, Hettinger was injured in an accident in which the truck, belonging to Hockman and driven by John Swatman, an employee, collided with the Plymouth sedan driven by Hettinger at the corner of East Mound street and Mingo street.

Hettinger claims that it was through the carelessness of the driver of the truck that he suffered injury to his knee which caused him to lose three days work. He also claims that he lost the use of his car for 30 days. He asks $200 for the damage to his automobile, $500 for his personal injuries, $150 for the loss of the use of his automobile in his business and $15 for the time that he was unable to work.

OHIO LEADS IN NUMBER OF NEW WAR FACTORIES

WASHINGTON, July 17—Ohio led the nation in the number and value of new war plants constructed since Pearl Harbor, the War Production Board reported today.

The WPB's first complete breakdown since the war began showed that 1,293 new facilities had been constructed in Ohio at a cost of $1,677,000,000.

Pennsylvania was second with 1,220 plants costing $1,675,000,000. Michigan was third, Illinois fourth, New York fifth and Texas sixth, the WPB said.

The largest expansions in Ohio centered in the automotive, machine tool, aircraft, machinery, electrical equipment and munitions, the board said.

Approximately three-fourths of the expansion was financed by public money, while the remaining one-fourth was private capital.

Another car was reported in the ditch along Route 23 just north of Circleville.

Tisdale was riding in the car driven by his son, Berman Tisdale, who is home on leave from the Navy. Other passengers in the car were Mrs. Tisdale the sailor's mother, Ocell Rizer, Chester Rizer and Mary Louise Rizer all of Gillsville.

Mrs. Dorothy Garrett was the lone occupant of the car with which the Tisdale car collided. No one else was injured. The blinding rain was blamed for the accident.

OHIO LEADS IN NUMBER OF NEW WAR FACTORIES

WASHINGTON, July 17—Ohio led the nation in the number and value of new war plants constructed since Pearl Harbor, the War Production Board reported today.

The WPB's first complete breakdown since the war began showed that 1,293 new facilities had been constructed in Ohio at a cost of $1,677,000,000.

Pennsylvania was second with 1,220 plants costing $1,675,000,000, Michigan was third, Illinois fourth, New York fifth and Texas sixth, the WPB said.

The largest expansions in Ohio centered in the automotive, machine tool, aircraft, machinery, electrical equipment and munitions, the board said.

Approximately three-fourths of the expansion was financed by public money while the remaining one-fourth was private capital.

SERIES OF ACCIDENTS REPORTED IN COUNTY

A series of accidents occurred during the rain storm, Sunday morning, the sheriff's office reported.

Langley Tisdale, Laurelville, suffered a cut lip and bruises in an accident on Route 56, 4 1/2 miles east of Circleville at 2:10 a. m. and a car turned over on 56 about a mile and half east of the city shortly before that. Another car was reported in the ditch along Route 23 just north of Circleville.

Tisdale was riding in the car driven by his son, Beman Tisdale, who is home on leave from the Navy. Other passengers in the car were Mrs. Tisdale the sailor's mother, Ocell Rizer, Chester Rizer and Mary Louise Rizer all of Gibsons.

Mrs. Dorothy Garrett was the lone occupant of the car with which the Tisdale car collided. No one else was injured. The blinding rain was blamed for the accident.

RACIAL SUPERIORITY
THE self-styled "master race" isn't doing so well lately. The Hitlerites who boasted of their own perfection and presumed to speak for all Germans, who regarded all the rest of mankind as destined to be hewers of wood and drawers of water, have piped down. Perhaps they now look to another generation to vindicate their racial claims. In any case, they are probably doing more thinking than they did for the generation just ended.
And what of those wild claims which wrought such havoc? Any level-headed anthropologist would probably agree that there is, and has been for ages, little difference in the basic racial stock of western Europe. Gifted individuals have appeared and disappeared, often lighting up their cities and countries for a period of apparent superiority. But sooner or later they have settled back again into what Walt Whitman called "the divine average."
If there seems now to be any notably superior nation in the world, it may be the American people. But when we come to analyze ourselves frankly, we face the conclusion that our superiority comes not so much from the racial stock of our dominant groups, which is varied in itself, but from the new opportunities offered that stock by a rich and undeveloped country in which to expand.

SURVIVING NEW DEAL SYMBOL
AS the wave of cabinet changes sweeps over Washington, it is fairly safe to predict that Henry A. Wallace will not be ousted roughly from the secretaryship of the Department of Commerce, so long as he wants to remain. There is no reason to think that the personal relations of President Truman and Secretary Wallace are not very good. It will be political considerations, rather than personal relations, which will determine Wallace's tenure.
More than any other man in the Truman Administration, Wallace represents the labor agrarian left of the Democratic Party. He is the authentic heir to the old New Deal, and the personal symbol above all others, even including Ickes, of New Dealism in the cabinet. With southern Democrats of decidedly conservative inclinations, such as Byrnes and Vinson, taking key places, it is likely that Truman will keep Wallace as a political anchor to windward.
It isn't impossible, however, that Wallace might bow out of the administration of his own accord. Nor is it beyond reason that there might be a real split in policy with the economically conservative new forces which could drive him out. But as long as he remains in the cabinet, the left-liberals will feel they have some assurance that the Truman administration has not deserted them.

Air Power Enthusiasts See Jap's Doom Nearing
President Getting Rid Of Deadwood Personnel
Special to Central Press
WASHINGTON—Supporters of all-out air power as a means of crippling the enemy's fighting ability are certain that they can knock Japan out of the war in the next few months and force the empire to sue for peace.
However, more conservative officers are certain that Japan's homeland will have to be invaded, and that the Nips will be defeated only after their armies are crushed completely.
The next four months should tell the story, or at least give some idea of what may be expected.
Officers who are directing the aerial blitz believe Japan's war industries can be knocked out by wiping out less than 50 cities. Considering that Tokyo was reduced to rubble in a few raids, this shouldn't take too long.
Actually, no one knows the answer to the big question: when will the war end in the Pacific? However, the fact remains that in a few months proportionately more damage has been done in Japan than was accomplished in years in Germany by the RAF and the United States Army air force.
Should the Japanese choose to fight on, they are certain to become cave dwellers, living a primitive life, because their cities will be gone.
PRESIDENT TRUMAN is an impatient man when it comes to putting the government's house in order.

But it is no joke that Mr. Truman is weeding out a lot of dead-wood personnel and making bureau heads economize on the use of

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS
By PAUL MALLON
WASHINGTON, July 17—No secret meetings with the military were held by the Woodrum house committee which urged what it called "a broad policy of universal military training."
No special information concerning difficulties ahead of this nation was privately passed to the committee by the War department which has been promoting the youth draft. Specifically, no inside scare over Russia inspired the committee.
Consequently, considerable perplexity has developed as to how and why it went contrary to the weight of evidence in its own hearings.
It seemed to vote 16 to 0 in favor of a program which none of its hearing witnesses endorsed, except the Army, Navy, State departments and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, against the popular opposition of national educational groups, both major national labor organizations, two of the three national farm organizations, as well as the usual peace societies, and women's groups.
To make the mystery more possible, one member of the committee says he has received only two letters from his district in favor of the youth draft, while he has a bushel of mail against it.
When congressmen go 16 to 0 (the remaining six members abstained or wanted to delay action but did not vote against the report directly) in favor of something opposed by their constituents and the most powerful lobbies in Washington—labor, farmer, education, women—a miracle is wrought.
This one seems to come within the realm of magic—political magic. It should have been entitled "how to be a politician in one easy lesson." Caught between the Army and the lobbies, the committee favored both opposite courses—in moderation, of course.
Committee Chairman Woodrum tossed all the hot potato evidence he had amassed, into the air, then caught and came forward with some conglomeration which steamed in the headlines.
Actually it is cold potato salad. His pride in it did not leap even to ordinary bounds as he did not even have it printed in the congressional record which prints all congressional thoughts for the asking.
Upon close inspection you will find the report did not endorse the War department program but was worded to sound as if it did, by approving "the principle" and "the broad policy" yet undefined.
Among members of the Woodrum committee is Representative James W. Wadsworth, of New York, who is supposed to have seen to the wording. He wants to draft all youths of 18 or thereabouts for a year in the Army.
Talking around with the committeemen, you will find many favor a democratic substitute such as advocated by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for training boys in schools, without interrupting their education, expanding the national guard and reserves systems, and Summer camps. The report did not oppose this, excepting it seemed to want the youths drafted for it.
The Veterans of Foreign Wars program, following the lines outlined in this column since last September, now rates the best chance of adoption by congress in the end—without a draft—but only after more magic and semantics. Next will come a report from the house military affairs committee and this may recommend drafting, as (Continued on Page Six)

DIET AND HEALTH
Source of Undulant Fever
By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.
CERTAIN infections, when they first start, cause severe symptoms, such as fever, headache, sickness to the stomach and vomiting. Then, after the infection continues for a long time or becomes chronic, the symptoms become less severe but still may be disabling. One of the infections which may act in this way is undulant fever or brucellosis. This disorder is caused by a germ known as the Brucella abortus.
The symptoms of chronic brucellosis, according to Doctor Eric Leher of East St. Louis, are much like that of tuberculosis. There are slight fever which may persist for weeks or months, weakness, tiredness, loss of weight and, often, inflammation of the joints of the spine. Lymph glands also may become enlarged and tender.
Hard to Diagnose
The condition is not always an easy one to diagnose. However, there are various laboratory tests which are used that may be of help. For example, there is a skin test which is made by injecting killed Brucella abortus germs into the upper layer of the skin. If the test is positive, a red swelling occurs at the point of the injection. A positive test means that an infection has been present, but may have been cleared up. In other words, the skin test may be positive, even though no symptoms of brucellosis are present.

The most accurate test is to find the germs of the disease in the blood. However, in the chronic cases, such a positive blood culture often cannot be obtained. The mere fact that these tests are negative does not mean that the patient is not suffering from brucellosis.
Infected Milk
Brucellosis is contracted for the most part by the drinking of milk from infected animals, which has not been pasteurized. So, in other words, getting rid of the disease in animals will keep it from being contracted by human beings. Doctor Leher recommends that all animals be tested for the presence of brucellosis. If they are found to have the disease they should be slaughtered. Of course, meat cutters and packing house employees who will come in contact with infected animals must be taught how to handle them properly.
The next important step is to enforce the proper pasteurization of milk. When milk is treated in this way, the germs which produce brucellosis are destroyed. Because chronic brucellosis is becoming more common and can result in so much disability it is important that these measures be established.

In that case, your conventional return is your fourth-best. That helps your partner read your holding, especially its length, and guides him in deciding whether you should take the third or fourth round of the suit or he. Sometimes it can enable a good partner in the original leader's position to know that he should unblock by getting rid of a card higher than your best, especially if your string in the suit is longer, or a switch of lead by you wished.

Prince of the Pampas
by LOIS EBY AND JOHN C. FLEMING
CHAPTER FORTY-THREE
EARLY NEXT morning Fitz was off for his heavy schedule of interviews. Terry had breakfast with him at seven in a small shop around the corner from the hotel.
"Just wanted to remind you that you're in for when you marry me," he explained his urgent invitation lightly. "And to see if your life of luxury had made you haggard at dawn."
Terry was remembering the junky little sweet shop they used to drop into at any hour of the day or night around the corner from the paper. "All the cups of coffee I've drunk with you," she laughed.
"I've often wondered," Fitz said, "if it's you that stimulates me, or just the association."
He kissed her on the brow when she was half through her breakfast roll, and dashed off. She watched his tall lanky figure hurrying carelessly along and laughed aloud. Get up at dawn for five minutes! Oh, well, that was Fitz.
She met Jime at ten and they went shopping along the glittering length of Calle Florida.
"The only difference between the way I shop alone and with you," Terry murmured, "is that I go into the shops when I'm with you."
Jime cried, "That proves we're kindred spirits. I have a secret mania for window shopping."
Terry accomplished her buying quickly. Some fresh accessories—two pairs of gloves, half a dozen pairs of stockings, some lingerie. Jime was slightly surprised at such restraint, and Terry explained humorously.
"Even if I do marry Fitz, I won't need a trousseau. We won't take time for a honeymoon. I know him. And he probably won't have house rent. He has trouble with his money. He buys things. He's probably paying installments on a battleship this year."
"Well, if you're sure you're through then, dear, we can start on my shopping. It is rather urgent."
They took a taxi five blocks farther down the noisy, crowded street. Between the jacaranda trees still faintly blue, they stopped before the glass and onyx front of a couturier's.
"I have complete confidence in Madeline," Jime said as they made their way across the street and went through the door the doorman held for them. "She has found my clothes for me ever since I used to go to her on the Rue de la Paix."
The black-haired French woman was charmed to see Jime. She was holding an exquisite summer frock for her, she said.
"I'll see it later," Jime promised. "Right now I want you to fit my friend for a complete trousseau."
"Me?" gasped Terry.
Both Jime and the black-haired Madeline laughed at her blank confusion. And Madeline began to bring out models even while Jime was overriding Terry's vigorous protests.
"Be quiet," she admonished. "If you think I have no right to give you a gift, then you'll have to take it as salary. After all, you've been helping me decorate houses for two months. And you are a 'famous Norte American decorator.'"
Terry groaned. "Says who? I'd never be able to repay you as long as I live!"
Suddenly Jime reached to take her hand in hers. The clipped authority in her voice softened to quiet entreaty. "You don't really mind, do you? Because I want to buy you those clothes. I want to think of your wearing them—and remembering me. I've enjoyed you, Terry. Remember, I told you once you're the kind of girl I've always wanted for a daughter."
Terry's protests stumbled hard against the quick lump in her throat. She blinked a couple of times and her smile was unsteady. "This is one of the bigger moments in my life, Jime."
That night Fitz remembered to send Terry roses and take her out for dinner. She wanted to tell him of the unbelievable trousseau bought and packed in new luggage. But she hesitated mentioning it until he spoke of marrying her again. It would not be surprising to hear he'd changed his mind.
He was full of the spice of his interviews. How he'd cracked the shell of old ironides, how he'd coaxed a story from a recalcitrant cabinet member, the long cable he'd sent winding up the stories. Now he was free as a bird.
"And now—" he leaned across the softly lit night club table, "we can talk about your book."
Terry murmured, "Oh," a little flatly. Then she remembered. Business always first with Fitz. He had usually gotten around to proposing when they were standing on the steps of her apartment with the river breeze blowing their breath into icicles.
But she forgave him the next moment as he concentrated on her description of the novel. The background sounded fabulous, he admitted, and the characters, if she could make them believable, had color all right.
"What about the problem of the thing?" he wanted to know. Briefly she sketched the peon trouble.
"You mean there's an organization spreading among the peons of all the estancias?" he cried.
"Yes."
"But that's colossal. Do you know what proportion of the entire country's population they represent?"
"Of course."
Fitz solemnly patted her hand. "At last, Kitten," he nodded, "you have something." He lit a cigaret and Terry asked for one. As he obligingly lit one for her, he nodded at her plot development. He disagreed with her, though, on her ending.
"It can't be just a shakedown racket."
"But that's what it seems to be," Terry argued. "The organization demands money from the peons."
"Stinking!" exploded Fitz. "Who would believe any self-respecting racket would bother itself trying to bleed such poor, miserable turnips?"
Terry stormed at him in sudden violence. "They aren't miserable! They're happy and well treated! Brooks and his father both—" Her words came rushing out in an impulsive torrent. Brooks' constant concern for the peons... his radical championing of them even as a boy... his fairness, his sympathy, his understanding.
Abruptly she was aware of Fitz' strange silence, his enigmatic grin. She stopped, out of breath, trying to remember what she had been saying.
Fitz' voice was quietly sardonic. "I still say you need a political scheme back of the peon trouble," he murmured. "And I think you've got it. Brooks the idealist—lover of the masses."
"I don't know what you're talking about," Terry scoffed.
There was laughter and malevolence in Fitz' Irish eyes. "Don't you see?" he said. "A revolution. History is full of starry-eyed nobility starting revolutions to build the perfect state."
Terry's fingers twitched and her glass of wine streaked for the table edge, dripped on the skirt of her evening dress. She pulled back from it with a strangled cry. "Damn you, Fitz Turner!" she choked.

Sgt. Gordon, Miss Stine
Are Wed In Charleston

Mr. Ben H. Gordon is Attendant For Brother

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Stine, 35 C. Ashley avenue, Charleston, South Carolina, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Lenora, to Sgt. S. R. Gordon, son of Mr. H. M. Gordon, 603 South Court street, and the late Mrs. Gordon.

They were married Tuesday afternoon, July 10, at the bride's home in Charleston, with Chaplain Ephraim Bennett, United States Army, officiating.

The bride wore a street-length dress of pale pink, accented with white accessories. Her corsage was of white orchids.

Miss Cella Pinasky, cousin of the bride, served as bridesmaid and Mr. Ben H. Gordon, mayor of Circleville, served his brother as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was given at the bride's home for close friends and relatives.

The new Mrs. Gordon has been employed at the Charleston Port of Embarkation in an administrative capacity. Sgt. Gordon has recently returned from the European theater of operations, where he served 33 months.

Following a wedding trip to Washington D. C., the couple arrived in Circleville to spend the remainder of Sgt. Gordon's 30-day leave, with his family on South Court street. Pretty Shirtmaker

THE shirtmaker is the great American classic in frocks. We wear it for the morning, for the afternoon . . . and even for the evening. The dress sketched here, though none too dressy for luncheon, is really an afternoon version of the shirt and skirt one-piece.

The fabric is golden yellow rayon crepe with a black etched print wandering all over it. Sleeves to the wrist and a high neckline are a relief in this season of scooped and sleeveless bodices. The dressiest touch, however, is the fan pleated pocket with its three black ribbon bows attached.

MISS SCHLEYER
WILL PRESENT
PIANO RECITALS

On Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, Miss Anna M. Schleyer will present her piano students in a recital at St. Philip's parish house on West Mound street.

The recital will begin at 8:15 p. m. Those taking part on Thursday evening will be Miriam Ward, Nancy Wardell, Sheila Hallam, Carol Ann Johnson, Marsha Morgan, Carol Ann Vandervort, Jerry Pritchard, Teddy Huston, Ralph Sterling, Nancy Bower, Betty Lou Hill, Jo Ellen Good, Marlene Steele, Martha Spangler, Phyllis Ann Spangler, David Parks, Donna Katherine Hallam, Margaret Ann Green, Ann Downing, Betty Glitt, Eugenia Burille.

On Friday evening Mrs. Dudley Carpenter will offer a group of songs. Those taking part in the Friday evening recital will be Charlene Canter, Patricia Sue Brown, Jo Ellen Good, Jimmy Carpenter, Ruth Glenn, Ann Moeller, Mary Carolyn Weller, Elizabeth Wolf, Mrs. Carpenter, Ann Elizabeth Snider, Ann Curtain, Katherine Hartsaugh and Donna Jean Spangler.

Jane (formerly Betty) Greer can hold her pretty head high with this new coiffure designed by Hazel Rogers, RKO hair stylist. A white Dache' net is drawn across the crown of her head and encircled by strands of her hair twisted with the ends of the net. From any angle the picture is charming and new. Miss Greer will soon be seen in "George White's Scandals," an RKO technical musical picture.

Make The Most Of Berry Season

BLUEBERRY sauce, made tangy and spicy with lemon juice and powdered cloves, is a delightfully cool seasonal topping for your favorite dessert pudding. Or use it to dress up a dish of ice cream or sherbet.

Here we are, right in the middle of the blueberry season, happily stretched for us, these days, over nearly four months, because of the generous supply of the huge, cultivated blueberries now available from early June until mid-September.

Blueberry muffins are perennial favorites in American homes at this time of year, but blueberry scones, equally good, are perhaps not so well known.

Following is the recipe for this delicious breakfast scone, together with a recipe for an unusual blueberry sauce, fine for ice creams, sherberts, cottage pudding, custard or any favorite pudding.

Blueberry Breakfast Scones: Sift 2 c. enriched flour with 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/4 tsp. soda and 2 tps. baking powder. Cut in 1/4 c. fortified margarine until it looks like peas through the flour. Add 1 c. cultivated blueberries and mix lightly. Make a hollow in center of mixture and pour in gradually 1/2 c. buttermilk (or sour milk) mixed with 1 tsp. molasses. When thoroughly mixed, pat dough with hands on floured board to half-inch thickness. To avoid crushing berries, do not use rolling pin. Cut dough in triangles; place on baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (425F) 12-15 min. Split, spread with butter or fortified margarine. Serve hot. Serves 6.

Blueberry Sauce: Measure 1/2 c. water, 6 tps. corn syrup, 1 tsp. lemon juice and 1/4 tsp. powdered cloves into heavy saucepan. Simmer gently 10 min. Add 1 c. cultivated blueberries and cook additional 3 min. Add 1 tsp. fortified margarine. Chill. Makes approximately 1 c. sauce.

TIGERS FAIL TO IMPRESS SCRIBE

Detroit Has Bat Anemia; Tribe Edges Red Sox; Cubs Win Again

NEW YORK, July 17—It is risky to pick flaws in a pennant favorite right after it apparently has shaken a serious slump, but the wonder of it all today is that the tottering Tigers still are in first place.

A browse through the books reveals that they are suffering from a serious case of base hit anemia. That wasn't surprising since the prevailing belief has been that prize pitching has kept the club up in the race. But, it was a shock to learn that the club has only three dependable starters at present and that it is without a top flight relief pitcher.

Since competition began with the eastern clubs on June 27, starting pitchers have been able to go the route in only seven out of 19 games and the co-ace of the 1944 staff, Paul (Dizzy) Trout hasn't started and finished a winning game since May 9, three weeks after the season began. Trout, who didn't accompany the team on its current trip, is down with lumbago in a Detroit hospital and he is an extremely big question-mark in the team's plans for the remainder of the season.

That leaves the team with Hal Newhouse, Al Benton, and Frank (Stubby) Overmire as its front-line pitching strength. There are several relief men, none effective. Only Zeb Eaton has been able to gain a victory in the three week competition with eastern clubs. Even so the pitching would have been good enough to get by if the hitting had held up, but right now it is the weakest in either league.

Even with a 12-hit attack which produced a 9 to 4 victory over the Yanks at New York yesterday, the Tiger lineup has a season average of only .248. Second Baseman Eddie Mayo is the hardest hitting regular at .287 and the rest scale down to Shortstop Skeeter Webb who is tapping a bare .179. Two walks and doubles by Hank (2.05) Greenberg and Roger (2.76) Cramer produced three first inning runs and an error leaked in another. Roy (2.61) Cullenbine got a homer but Bobby (.237) Swift led the attack with three hits. Charley (Red) Ruffing, making his first appearance for the Yankees after three years as a G. I., got a pinch-hit single. Overmire's win was his seventh.

The victory, coupled with double deflation of the Senators by the Browns at Washington, 7 to 3 and 5 to 1, put the Tigers three full games ahead. Veteran Al Hollingsworth and Youngster Newman (Tex) Shirley pitched the twin wins for the Browns.

Unpredictable Bobo Newsom won his second straight after losing 12 in a row, a two-hit, 7 to 1 triumph which gave the Athletics a split after the White Sox won the opener, 6 to 2. Leroy Schalk hit a three-run homer to give Johnny Humphries a victory over the A's, 6 to 2. Russ Christopher, in the opener, it was Christopher's fourth straight loss. Bobby Estelle hit two homers for the A's in the second game.

Cleveland made all its runs in the sixth, two of them on a homer by Pat Seery, to top the Red Sox at Boston, 3 to 2. Allie Reynolds won his ninth game.

The Cubs scored twice in the last of the ninth to beat the Giants, 4 to 3. It was Chicago's fifth straight win and their 16th in 17 games. Singles by Harry Lowrey and Paul Gillespie after a walk and an error produced the deciding tallies. Ray Starr relieved Claude Passeau to gain his first victory of the season.

The runner-up Cardinals kept pace at St. Louis with a 2 to 0 shutout by Harry Brecheen over the Braves. Brecheen, who has been out with arm trouble was making his first start since June 23. He gave up six hits.

Tom Seals, shelved as a starting pitcher by Manager Leo Durocher when the Dodgers were winning, came back now that they are losing to win his second straight starting assignment, beating the Pirates at Pittsburgh, 8 to 4. The Dodgers made 12 hits, including a two-run homer by Augie Galan.

Philadelphia and Cincinnati were not scheduled in the National.

Some 300,000 persons chipped in only $301 to see a man go over Niagara Falls in a barrel. That's a tenth of a cent per person. During war-time thrills come cheap, says Grandpappy Jenkins — especially home-made ones.

How will we know, says Zadok Dumkopf, when the Nips surrender? Does anyone, he asks, know how "Uncle!" sounds in Japanese?

TIGERS FAIL TO IMPRESS SCRIBE

Detroit Has Bat Anemia; Tribe Edges Red Sox; Cubs Win Again

NEW YORK, July 17—It is risky to pick flaws in a pennant favorite right after it apparently has shaken a serious slump, but the wonder of it all today is that the tottering Tigers still are in first place.

A browse through the books reveals that they are suffering from a serious case of base hit anemia. That wasn't surprising since the prevailing belief has been that prize pitching has kept the club up in the race. But, it was a shock to learn that the club has only three dependable starters at present and that it is without a top flight relief pitcher.

Since competition began with the eastern clubs on June 27, starting pitchers have been able to go the route in only seven out of 19 games and the co-ace of the 1944 staff, Paul (Dizzy) Trout hasn't started and finished a winning game since May 9, three weeks after the season began. Trout, who didn't accompany the team on its current trip, is down with lumbago in a Detroit hospital and he is an extremely big question-mark in the team's plans for the remainder of the season.

That leaves the team with Hal Newhouser, Al Benton, and Frank (Stubby) Overmire as its front-line pitching strength. There are several relief men, none effective. Only Zeb Eaton has been able to gain a victory in the three week competition with eastern clubs. Even so the pitching would have been good enough to get by if the hitting had held up, but right now it is the weakest in either league.

Even with a 12-hit attack which produced a 9 to 4 victory over the Yankees at New York yesterday, the Tiger lineup has a season average of only .248. Second Baseman Eddie Mayo is the hardest hitting regular at .287 and the rest scale down to Shortstop Skeeter Webb who is tapping a bare .179. Two walks and doubles by Hank (2.05) Greenberg and Roger (2.76) Cramer produced three first inning runs and an error leaked in another. Roy (2.61) Cullenbine got a homer but Bobby (2.37) Swift led the attack with three hits. Charley (Red) Ruffing, making his first appearance for the Yankees after three years as a G. I., got a pinch-hit single. Overmire's win was his seventh.

The victory, coupled with double deflation of the Senators by the Browns at Washington, 7 to 3 and 5 to 1, put the Tigers three full games ahead. Veteran Al Hollingsworth and Youngster Newman (Tex) Shirley pitched the twin wins for the Browns.

Unpredictable Bobo Newsom won his second straight after losing 12 in a row, a two-hit, 7 to 1 triumph which gave the Athletics a split after the White Sox won the opener, 6 to 2. Leroy Schalk hit a three-run homer to give Johnny Humphries a victory over the A's ace, Russ Christopher, in the opener. It was Christopher's fourth straight loss. Bobby Estalella hit two homers for the A's in the second game.

Cleveland made all its runs in the sixth, two of them on a homer by Pat Seerey, to top the Red Sox at Boston, 3 to 2. Allie Reynolds won his ninth game.

The Cubs scored twice in the last of the ninth to beat the Giants, 4 to 3. It was Chicago's fifth straight win and their 16th in 17 games. Singles by Harry Lowrey and Paul Gillespie after a walk and an error produced the deciding tallies. Ray Starr relieved Claude Passeau to gain his first victory of the season.

The runner-up Cardinals kept pace at St. Louis with a 2 to 0 shutout by Harry Brecheen over the Braves. Brecheen, who has been out with arm trouble was making his first start since June 23. He gave up six hits.

Tom Seals, shelved as a starting pitcher by Manager Leo Durocher when the Dodgers were winning, came back now that they are losing to win his second straight starting assignment, beating the Pirates at Pittsburgh, 8 to 4. The Dodgers made 12 hits, including a two-run homer by Augie Galan.

Philadelphia and Cincinnati were not scheduled in the National.

Some 300,000 persons chipped in only $301 to see a man go over Niagara Falls in a barrel. That's a tenth of a cent per person. During war-time thrills come cheap, says Grandpappy Jenkins — especially home-made ones.

How will we know, says Zadok Dumkopf, when the Nips surrender? Does anyone, he asks, know how "Uncle" sounds in Japanese?

CLOUDBURST and floods brought death and great damage to a 25-mile stretch of the Lehigh River valley in Pennsylvania and the lower Delaware River. At Phillipsburg, N. J., (cross on map above) an avalanche of earth and debris was washed down upon homes. The swollen Delaware River carried away railroad bridges, and lightning bolts caused death, injury and fire. At least six persons are dead, many are hurt, and damage is not yet calculated. (International)

Frank Fischer, The Rev. Clarence Swearingen Debate Conscription

PROS AND CONS OF TRAINING ARE PRESENTED

Arguments For And Against Military Program Given Before Large Crowd

Merits of peacetime military conscription were thoroughly discussed Monday night by Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools, and the Rev. Clarence Swearingen, pastor of the Methodist church, before a large and attentive crowd in the high school auditorium Monday night.

In the debate sponsored by the Circleville Rotary Club, Mr. Fischer upheld the affirmative of the question "Resolved the United States should Adopt Peacetime Military Conscription" while the Rev. Mr. Swearingen took the negative side of the issue.

Mr. Fischer based his arguments on three concepts: What is regimentation? for what do we live? and individual welfare must be subordinated to that of the group.

He stated that regimentation is a matter of degree. We do not want it to the degree it was practiced by Hitler but our actions are regimented to a certain degree.

Some say we live for the future while others say we live for the present. Mr. Fischer declared a year would not be wasted if a boy is taught to work for a better future.

The affirmative speaker declared that many men in service now favor peacetime training and quoted excerpts from letters and statements by them.

He declared that history gives us no indication that wars will cease and stated that we should be ready when a new war breaks out. Bullies and aggressor nations know only the law of fear and we must be ready to make them afraid to start wars, he emphasized.

Mr. Fischer stated the peacetime training would be helpful to youths. The present war revealed a large number of physically unfit men. He said the training not only would develop the boys physically but give them contacts which would be helpful and give them an opportunity to learn trades. He said the prepared soldier was less apt to be killed and that now is the time to prepare for the next war. Without discipline a democracy can not survive and the training would help teach discipline which is now lacking in the home and school, in some instances, the speaker declared.

The Rev. Mr. Swearingen gave 10 reasons why he opposed peacetime military conscription. They are as follows:

"It is unfair in a democracy to the millions of our boys now serving their country overseas to rush through military training while they are away. A conservative estimate is that 70 percent of them are opposed to peacetime conscription."

"It is inconsistent with the hopes expressed in the United Nations charter. It would create suspicion and fear among other countries, provoking them to greater preparations for war, thus starting a new race for armaments."

"It would tend to create a soldier bloc, a military authority over civilians, influencing politics, foreign policy and domestic matters. It has done it in France, Germany and Japan."

"It is unnecessary now since Germany is crushed and Japan will be soon. The selective service act has been extended for another year; we have 11,000,000 men under arms, a two ocean navy and a most powerful air force on earth. Why the rush?"

"Our geographical location makes a large land force unnecessary. Any attack would come by air or sea. An adequate navy and air corps, plus a small but well-trained and equipped land force would be sufficient. Future wars will be won by science where organized resources will be directed by trained technicians. It takes no longer to conscript and train an army than it does to establish industry on a wartime basis. It has been proved that our army was not delayed for lack of training but lack of equipment. Secretary Daniels testified that in both wars our boys fought side by side with French troops who had received peacetime military training proving it made no better soldiers."

"A large peacetime army has never prevented attack and has never assured success when war

PVT. WOODWARD LISTED KILLED FIGHTING NAZIS

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Woodward, Kingston, Route 1, near Whisler have been informed by the War Department that their only son, Pvt. William A. Woodward, was killed in action about February 19, 1945, in Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodward were first informed that their son was missing in action on that date.

William was a 1944 graduate of the Saltcreek township high school and was inducted into the service in August after graduation. He was a member of the Sunday School at Whisler Presbyterian church.

Surviving besides the parents are four sisters, all at home, Berntha Mae, Mary Ellen, Betty Louise and June Ann.

came, according to history. History does show that the only great nations that have never lost a war in the 20th century are Great Britain and the United States, both without peacetime conscription.

"It would impose unnecessarily an economic burden upon the U. S. It would cost from three to four billions of dollars, which is more than our total cost of education. That would cut funds for necessary military expenses which would be dangerous and unwise. It is an antidote to unemployment, a vicious evasion of the nation's duty to provide employment in creative enterprise. Hitler used it and everyone knows the result."

"It will not benefit the health of the nation. It comes too late and to those who least need it. Besides the Army and Navy will accept only 'physically fit'. Many emotional and nervous subjects would be injured by it. Figures show that venereal disease is more prevalent among men in service than in civilians. The Army is not a hospital. There is a better way for the nation to improve the health of its citizens than by conscripting and regimenting her 18-year-old boys."

"It has not and is not building character and citizenship. Military leaders make no such claim. Blind unquestioning obedience to superiors is good training for fascism. The sovereign power of self-determination is killed. He is trained in hardship but not self-reliance. Any industrial school or reformatory will inform you that you cannot make a good citizen out of a bad boy in one year of military training."

"It is un-American and un-democratic and it is totalitarian in method and technique. Our American system was purchased with the lives of our fathers who came to these shores in search of liberty and freedom from European tyranny. I am opposed to surrendering this priceless heritage while our noble sons are fighting for its preservation and after it has met every test for 150 years over the damnable un-American system we propose to adopt. Let us not exchange our system for the one we are destroying across the seas."

Following the presentation of arguments each man was given a five-minute rebuttal period in which they picked flaws in each other's arguments.

After the formal part of the program, questions were invited from the audience and a short forum discussion period was held.

Dr. G. D. Phillips was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker, President Norbert Cochran, president of Rotary Club, opened the meeting and introduced Dr. Phillips.

Several men in uniform and others recently discharged from the service were among the crowd.

REAMS APPEALS TO PARENTS OF BOYS IN BIS

COLUMBUS, O., July 17—State Welfare Director Frazier Reams appealed to relatives of youths at the Boys' Industrial School to refrain from acts which might contribute to the delinquency of the youths while in the institution and help the state carry out its rehabilitation program.

The welfare director's appeal followed disclosures by staff members of the Boys' Industrial School that violations had been uncovered of mailing and visiting privileges by parents whose sons were in the institution.

In one case, Superintendent Ralph W. Alvis informed Reams, two $20 bills were found in the possession of a boy shortly after his mother visited him.

Prosecution of the parent was not undertaken since investigation by school authorities failed to definitely establish whether the money was given the boy for the purpose of encouraging an escape attempt or in ignorance of a rule which forbids industrial school wards to have money in their possession.

In another recent case, Reams said, a parent carefully concealed four packages of cigarettes in the bottom layer of a candy box which was sent to an inmate of the school in violation of industrial school rules which prohibit smoking.

"The State of Ohio operates the Boys' Industrial School for the purpose of detaining boys who are going the wrong direction from useful citizenship," Reams said. "This school has operated for more than 85 years and has put many boys back on the path of right living and useful citizenship. This is possible with all boys, but an important factor is the right cooperation and the sympathetic help on the part of the parents."

"It is imperative that parents make any sacrifice in order to help the state build industrial school wards into useful, law-abiding citizens who will carry their responsibility at a time when every boy must not only carry his own load, but in the future will be required to carry part of that of the million boys who have been killed or injured in this war," Reams added.

ASSEMBLY WORK DISCUSSED AT KIWANIS CLUB

"Work of the 96th General Assembly" was the topic of Victor L. Keys, executive secretary of the Ohio Dry Cleaners association and of the Ohio Pharmaceutical association at the Kiwanis club meeting Monday evening at the Pickaway Country Club.

Mr. Keys explained the work of lobbyists and lobby groups and outlined some of the bills introduced in the assembly during the session which ends officially Thursday. A total of 832 bills were introduced during the long session and 207 passed. He told how bills were introduced and what procedure they went through before they reached the floor of the house or senate.

He described some of the bills and talked about ones of interest to various businesses. He praised Senators Roscoe Walcutt and Everett Addison, and Representative H. E. Louis of New Holland.

Roscoe Warren announced that the club was sponsoring a show at the Cliftona theater August 7, proceeds of which will go to the Kiwanis "Go to Church" campaign fund.

Announcement of another city-wide scrap drive by Kiwanis members was made by Dan McClain. The drive will be held on Wednesday, July 25. Both waste paper came, according to history. History does show that the only great nations that have never lost a war in the 20th century are Great Britain and the United States, both without peacetime conscription."

"It would impose unnecessarily an economic burden upon the U. S. It would cost from three to four billions of dollars, which is more than our total cost of education. That would cut funds for necessary military expenses which would be dangerous and unwise. It is an antidote to unemployment, a vicious evasion of the nation's duty to provide employment in creative enterprise. Hitler used it and everyone knows the result."

"It will not benefit the health of the nation. It comes too late and to those who least need it. Besides the Army and Navy will accept only 'physically fit'. Many emotional and nervous subjects would be injured by it. Figures show that venereal disease is more prevalent among men in service than in civilians. The Army is not a hospital. There is a better way for the nation to improve the health of its citizens than by conscripting and regimenting her 18-year-old boys."

"It has not and is not building character and citizenship. Military leaders make no such claim. Blind unquestioning obedience to superiors is good training for fascism. The sovereign power of self-determination is killed. He is trained in hardship but not self-reliance. Any industrial school or reformatory will inform you that you cannot make a good citizen out of a bad boy in one year of military training."

"It is un-American and un-democratic and it is totalitarian in method and technique. Our American system was purchased with the lives of our fathers who came to these shores in search of liberty and freedom from European tyranny. I am opposed to surrendering this priceless heritage while our noble sons are fighting for its preservation and after it has met every test for 150 years over the damnable un-American system we propose to adopt. Let us not exchange our system for the one we are destroying across the seas."

Following the presentation of arguments each man was given a five-minute rebuttal period in which they picked flaws in each other's arguments.

After the formal part of the program, questions were invited from the audience and a short forum discussion period was held. Dr. G. D. Phillips was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker. President Norbert Cochran, president of Rotary Club, opened the meeting and introduced Dr. Phillips.

Several men in uniform and others recently discharged from the service were among the crowd.

Two ways to deal with flies

Flies are costly. They pester livestock. They spread bacteria and germs. For the protection of livestock at pasture, use Dr. Hess Livestock Fly Spray. This product repels and kills flies.

If you want a product with high fly-killing efficiency for the barn, stable, milk-house, and the home, use Dr. Hess Special Fly Killer. It has an AA rating and we believe it is unexcelled as a fly killer. We can supply you with either or both of these products at this time.

THEY SURRENDERED--DEAR EMPEROR

POSITIVE PROOF that some Japanese fighters prefer life to an "honorable death" for their emperor is shown in the pictures above showing four types of Nip soldiers who are among the many thousands who have surrendered to the Allied forces in the Pacific battle zone. At top left is a pock-marked Jap captured on Kwajalein island. Top right shows a prisoner visibly happy to be alive. At lower left is a surly Jap taken at Kamaing, China, and lower right shows a Nipponese warrant officer captured on Iwo Jima. This is an official United States Army Signal Corps photo. REAMS APPEALS TO PARENTS OF BOYS IN BIS

COLUMBUS, O., July 17—State Welfare Director Frazier Reams appealed to relatives of youths at the Boys' Industrial School to refrain from acts which might contribute to the delinquency of the youths while in the institution and help the state carry out its rehabilitation program.

The welfare director's appeal followed disclosures by staff members of the Boys' Industrial School that violations had been uncovered of mailing and visiting privileges by parents whose sons were in the institution.

In one case, Superintendent Ralph W. Alvis informed Reams, two $20 bills were found in the possession of a boy shortly after his mother visited him.

Prosecution of the parent was not undertaken since investigation by school authorities failed to definitely establish whether the money was given the boy for the purpose of encouraging an escape attempt or in ignorance of a rule which forbids industrial school wards to have money in their possession.

In another recent case, Reams said, a parent carefully concealed four packages of cigarettes in the bottom layer of a candy box which was sent to an inmate of the school in violation of industrial school rules which prohibit smoking.

"The State of Ohio operates the Boys' Industrial School for the purpose of detaining boys who are going the wrong direction from useful citizenship," Reams said. "This school has operated for more than 85 years and has put many boys back on the path of right living and useful citizenship. This is possible with all boys, but an important factor is the right cooperation and the sympathetic help on the part of the parents."

"It is imperative that parents make any sacrifice in order to help the state build industrial school wards into useful, law-abiding citizens who will carry their responsibility at a time when every boy must not only carry his own load, but in the future will be required to carry part of that of the million boys who have been killed or injured in this war," Reams added.

"Work of the 96th General Assembly" was the topic of Victor L. Keys, executive secretary of the Ohio Dry Cleaners association and of the Ohio Pharmaceutical association at the Kiwanis club meeting Monday evening at the Pickaway Country Club.

Mr. Keys explained the work of lobbyists and lobby groups and outlined some of the bills introduced in the assembly during the session which ends officially Thursday. A total of 832 bills were introduced during the long session and 207 passed. He told how bills were introduced and what procedure they went through before they reached the floor of the house or senate.

He described some of the bills and talked about ones of interest to various businesses. He praised Senators Roscoe Walcott and Everett Addison, and Representative H. E. Louis of New Holland.

Roscoe Warren announced that the club was sponsoring a show at the Cliftona theater August 7, proceeds of which will go to the Kiwanis "Go to Church" campaign fund.
